

Virtually every important person I've met owes a piece of their success to Sally. This is because Sally's unique ability is to find synergies between people and create benefit for both parties. She has been so successful at this for such a long time that when Sally introduces people they come with an attitude of, "what can we do together", not "what do you want from me". Far from simply making introductions, Sally facilitates successful relationships.

I first began working with Sally almost three years ago. Since then she's tirelessly advocated on my behalf, creating a buzz behind the scenes and helping me to engage in incredibly lucrative relationships. Additionally, Sally is the voice of wisdom, powerful because of her blend of knowledge, insight, and intuition. When it has come time to make slight tactical adjustments, Sally's advice has been spot on.

Thanks in large part to the relationships I've made through working with Sally, my financial planning practice has doubled in each of the past two years. I am co-host of a financial planning podcast, Pro Money Talk, which is now #1 in the world. And I have received valuable recognition from my peers, in the media, and in strategic social circles.

Apart from business growth, the relationships she's helped me foster have enabled me to secure board positions I coveted, make powerful friends, and pursue personal passions at a much higher level. I would call Sally "my secret weapon", but I've heard enough CEO's, principals, and venture capitalists make that same statement to know she's not "mine". And the success she has generated for her clients is no secret.

Jason Papier
Principal
PWJohnson Wealth Management