To Whom It May Concern:

RE: Sally Pera

Sally Pera and I met many years ago when we were both involved with the Silicon Valley Charity Ball Foundation and we have been working together professionally for the last three years.

Sally has expanded the breadth of my personal and business contacts in Silicon Valley which has been worthwhile in many ways:

Through Sally, I was invited to participate with the Association of Corporate Growth (ACG) as a panel member at a breakfast meeting where we discussed "How to get the most from your Board of Directors". At that breakfast, I renewed an old acquaintance which resulted in my joining the board of his company.

Other professionals I met through ACG were instrumental in helping find a new audit firm for one company and a temporary finance executive for another company where I'm a board member.

One of the CEO's I met through Sally has become a good friend and, after he learned more about my background, hired me as a consultant with his company.

Most recently, I asked Sally if she knew of any experienced CFO's in the area that might be interested in joining a young software company. It wasn't long before I had three resumes of very qualified candidates and they are now all in the interview process at this company. All three of these people had been working with Sally on their own development.

Besides expanding my business contacts Sally has helped me learn an on-going process to continue developing more associations in Silicon Valley which is a key component in my business. She will continue to be an important part of my business activity going forward.

Sincerely,

Bob Puette
